

Why Become A Work At Home Mom?

Freelancing is a great way of earning a living for moms who work at home. Some advantages it brings are that you can work comfortably in your own home, in your own time, and you can often get some tax benefits. You can be your own boss and choose working hours that suit you. There are potentially higher earnings, and you don't need to travel anywhere - it is more convenient and stress-free for most people. For those juggling work and family obligations, freelancing work provides flexibility which is often a strong motivating factor. This article sets out to explain the advantages of freelancing work in more detail.

Enjoying your work

First and foremost, freelancing allows you to choose to do something you love. This is the reason most work at home mums enjoy it, especially those who love writing or art as freelancing can be better suited to these people.

Time with family

Most work at home moms choose to become freelancers so that they can spend more time with their children. This factor is one of the best advantages of freelancing and even if you don't have children, it allows more time to be spent with other members of your family and with friends. Women are often faced with the dilemma of choosing a career over family and with freelancing they don't have to. Stay at home moms can have the best of both worlds.

Flexibility

As mentioned before, freelancing is really flexible: it allows you to work when you want, and where you want. You can fit working around spending time with the children and other family, and this is a great advantage when you consider the precious moments which can be missed whilst spending all day in an office. You can choose whether you would like to work late at night or early in the morning (do whichever suits you), and it's entirely your choice as to whether you take your laptop outside to the park for example, or perhaps just cosy up in bed whilst working if this suits.

Go global

With freelancing, you are not restricted to working in your own city or even your own country. It can expand your customer base so that you can experience having a number of clients from various countries all over the world. In poorer countries, work at home moms can earn money in a stronger currency and they can also earn more working for a local company.

Tax benefits

A main reason many women decide to work at home is due to the tax benefits this type of career brings. You can usually claim for the section of your house that is being used for business purposes and also claim back any travel costs. Freelancing also helps reduce any petrol costs and of course by not commuting, you are cutting down on your own carbon footprint.

In conclusion, freelancing provides many advantages for a work at home mom. The ability to have a job you love, whilst being able to spend time with the family, be where you want, when you want, and to not be restricted to local or country locations are all bonuses of having a freelance job. Not to mention the financial and tax benefits it brings also. For work at home moms, freelancing is win-win.
